FROM THE EAST

Greetings from the East,
 Pray with me. Let's pray for peace.
 Let's pray for unity. Pray for our country, pray for its leaders, pray for wisdom, strength, resolve. Let's pray for the safety of our service men and women.
 Let's pray for their families. Let's pray for humility, for empathy. Let's give thanks for the many blessings we have been given.

Was it because there was not as much need that we stopped praying? If so, I would submit that there is more need now than ever, and subsequently no better time to pray. Pray for our youth that they might display moral fortitude. Pray for us as role models. Pray for our Masonic youth orders.

 Pray for guidance of what we can do to support them.

Pray for our Masonic lodge. That its membership is renewed by good men, as the lodge elders pass on to receive their reward. Pray for the community and for those less fortunate or struggling with mental health issues.

Let us pray that the tenants of Freemasonry, those of brotherly love, relief and truth, prevail. Let us practice charity. Let us pray for our loved ones, that they will know and understand how much we love them. There are so many distractions in this life, maybe they forget. Maybe we forget...about how much God loves us, or the greatest force in the universe.

If you believe in God, then you believe in His love and in His power...and in the power of prayer. Let's do our part.

Let us pray for those that hate that their eyes may be open to a new reality and that their hearts may experience love...a love that conquers hate. I believe it will take more than hope to accomplish this...it will take prayers, lots of them. I believe that this is so important that we should take time right now. Pray with me...

With Brotherly Love,

Todd Heiss
Worshipful Master

MASONIC SYMBOLS
(Extracted from www.freemason.org)

When speculative Masonry began in the 17th century, it adopted the stonemason’s tools as symbols to illustrate life lessons. Here are some of the best-known Masonic symbols:

Apron: The apron is the most recognizable item of a Mason’s attire. Masons wear aprons while at lodge and at certain public events. The tradition dates back to the fraternity’s operative days, when stonemasons wore protective work aprons.

Square and Compass: The Masonic square and compass is probably the most common symbol in Masonry, used to represent Freemasons and Masonic lodges around the world. Ancient stonemasons used the tools to create 90-degree angles and test the accuracy of their stones. In “speculative” Masonry, the square is an emblem of morality. The compass represents the relationship between the individual and society.

The Letter G: The letter G is often seen in the center of the square and compass symbol. It stands for geometry, the basis for stonemasonry—and, symbolically, for modern Freemasonry.

Plumb and Level: In stonemasonry, the plumb and level ensure surfaces are vertically and horizontally flush. For today’s Freemasons, the plumb is a symbol of justice, rectitude, and the importance of living in an upright manner, while the level is a reminder that all men are equal. You may have heard the phrase, “To meet on the level and part on the square.” That’s where it comes from!

Trowel: One of a stonemason’s most important working tools is the trowel, used to spread mortar that binds stones together. In Freemasonry, the trowel is used to spread the “cement” of brotherly love to unite a sacred band or society of friends.

Rough and Perfect Ashlars: The ashlar are two stone cubes placed near the master’s platform in the lodge; one is rough-edged, delivered straight from the quarry; the other is smooth and ready for building. The rough ashlar represents man in his crude form, while the perfect ashlar represents the man, who, through the teachings of Masonry, has become more polished. We never become a perfect ashlar, but we work toward it.

Columns: Every Masonic lodge has representations of two pillars, replicas of the two columns that flanked the entrance to King Solomon’s temple. The pillars are said to represent strength and establishment.

Winding Staircase: The winding staircase is another symbol inspired by King Solomon’s temple, referring to the steps leading from the entryway to the middle chamber of the temple. It’s an allegory for a member’s progress from Entered Apprentice to Fellow Craft.
